

Requirements for an Interdisciplinary Concentration in Archaeology

Program of study: To be planned with the Director of Undergraduate Studies. A minimum of 21 points is required from within Anthropology, Art History and Archaeology, and other approved departments; of the seven courses to be counted for the concentration, no more than four courses may be taken within any single department.

Introductory courses: TWO of the following: The Origin of Human Society (ANTH V1007), The Rise of Civilization (ANTH V1008) or Think Like an Archaeologist (ACLG 2028).*

*NB If you take all three introductory courses in archaeology, one may be substituted for an upper level course to fulfill the requirements of the concentration.

Upper Level Courses: One archaeology seminar or colloquium in Anthropology, Art History & Archaeology, Classics, or History, as approved by the DUS; three upper-level courses, including two that deal with different regions of the world.

Related courses: One related course to be planned with the program advisers in accordance with the student's interests.
